Product design Process

Reason for Change

The CXP-12 product bundles were offered with the introduction of the boost camera series and interface card series. The successful expansion of both component series also entailed the expansion of the bundle offering. In order to continue to implement and offer new requirements for product combinations, bundle offers will be stopped in favor of ordering individual components. This will make the ordering process more flexible and convenient. The PCN describes the change in the product range and ordering process.

Change Description

CXP-12 product bundles are no longer offered and can be replicated by ordering the respective individual components, consisting of a boost camera model and an Interface Card IC-1C.

Important: The individual components boost CXP-12 cameras and CXP-12 Interface Cards are still available and remain technically unchanged.
